

Resolution Speeches - J MUN Conference XLV

Resolution I - 1

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, while the People's Republic of Bangladesh does believe that resolution I-1 offers a way of protection to journalists in Haiti, it does not clarify which journalists would get the bodyguards. As Haiti has hundreds of news outlets, Bangladesh believes it is important to clarify which outlets would qualify for the bodyguards.

Additionally, Bangladesh believes that the press companies should be required to cover 25% of the cost of the bodyguards because even though Bangladesh is committed to a free press without censorship, media companies should be required to partially pay for the protection of their employees. Having said this, Bangladesh supports the resolution as long as there is a list determined by local Haitian government officials along with 6th committee and UNESCO officials of which news outlets are worthy of getting the bodyguards, and the news outlets are required to cover at least 25% of the cost. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I - 2

While the People's Republic of Bangladesh firmly believes in the freedom of education without censorship, resolution I-2 does not propose an effective solution to help promote education without censorship. Bangladesh acknowledges that academic censorship is especially harmful because it discourages children from seeking the truth. Resolution I-2 is not effective at discouraging censorship because there is no plan if a country decides to censor the international website, and the resolution is unrealistic by stating that it will provide resources to "every individual." Having said this, Bangladesh regrettably must oppose resolution I-2. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I - 3

While the People's Republic of Bangladesh strongly condemns China's censorship of education, resolution I-3 is not an effective way of ending censorship in China. This resolution does not have a way of determining which websites should be uncensored and it does not specify the amount of funding that will come from UNESCO. Additionally, this resolution does not specify which countries would be asked to place sanctions on China if they do not comply with not censoring the websites. All in all, due to the unclear sections of this resolution, Bangladesh must regrettably oppose resolution I-3. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I - 4

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, while the People's Republic of Bangladesh promotes the freedom of the press, Russia's press censorship law protects its citizens from false information. About ten million Russian citizens watch Russian news which shows how important the freedom of journalism is. Resolution I-4 is too harsh on journalists, as no journalists shall be arrested if they report false information. Additionally, instead of the Russian government determining what news is fake, a UN oversight board will determine that by using international law and best judgment, and a maximum of three Russian governmental officials are allowed on the board. In conclusion, Bangladesh supports resolution I-4 as long as no journalists are arrested and a UN oversight board determines what is fake news. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I-5

Honorable chairs, while the People's Republic of Bangladesh believes learning without censorship is crucial, resolution I-5 is not an effective way of ending censorship of education in China. Resolution I-5 does not specify which countries other than China would not be included in the commission and it does not specify what the commission would exactly do. Due to this, Bangladesh must oppose resolution I-5. Thank you, and I yield the rest of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I-6

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh strongly condemns race censorship in the United States. Minority populations are statistically much less likely to have access to educational materials, which makes it especially important to end race censorship. Additionally, according to the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), there are new bills aimed at banning the Critical Race Theory which is a piece of education that informs students of how systemic racism is "deeply rooted" in American society. Resolution I-6 proposes an effective solution to ending race censorship by restoring banned books and calling on states to implement the 1619 Project. Bangladesh also encourages Kenya to work with United States government officials to reverse the bill which is targeted at ending the teaching of critical race theory in grades Kindergarten through 12th. Having said this, Bangladesh happily supports resolution I-6. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I-7

Honorable chairs, while the People's Republic of Bangladesh acknowledges the rather extreme censorship of education in China, resolution I-7 does not offer an adequate solution to help to end the censorship of education in China. The resolution does not outline which "things" would be included in the checklist and how the checklist would be qualified as "good." Additionally, there is no follow-up plan if China does not use the checklist or unban the books. All in all, due to the lack of elaboration in the resolution, Bangladesh must regrettably oppose resolution I-7. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I-8

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh values access to books worldwide. Books are an important part of education, especially because many informational books are peer-reviewed and they are great sources of accurate information for students. Additionally, according to the National Children's Book and Literacy Alliance "Books help kids develop basic language skills and profoundly expand their vocabularies" while they also promote critical thinking. Resolution I-8 offers a great solution for countries who unnecessarily ban books to create a fair system of rating and unbanning the books. Keeping in mind that there are tens of millions of books in existence, it is unrealistic to rate everyone, therefore instead of rating every single book, only books that are in schools should be rated. Assuming this amendment is included in the resolution, Bangladesh will happily support resolution I-8. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution I-10

Honorable chairs, while the People's Republic of Bangladesh acknowledges that the academic censorship in China fabricates people's political views, resolution I-10 does not offer a proper solution to ending academic censorship in China. This resolution leaves the solution up to non-governmental organizations to solve the problems which poses an issue because governments have more power than NGOs, and since China is likely to not end its academic censorship laws without force, NGOs can not force governments to do anything. Therefore Bangladesh regrettably opposes resolution I-10. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution II-1

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, Bangladesh is committed to the protection of cultural and Heritage sites and items. Bangladesh has two UNESCO identified world heritage sites and our neighboring country, India, has 33 UNESCO identified world heritage sites, therefore it is of the utmost importance to protect world heritage sites. Resolution II-1 allows for a safe location for historical artifacts and implements plans to protect cultural and heritage sites. Additionally, Bangladesh asks for an amendment to resolution II-1 so that an additional three million dollars from the world bank is used to repair damaged world heritage sites. Assuming this amendment is implemented in the resolution, Bangladesh will happily support resolution II-1. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution II-2

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, with the ongoing conflict in the Middle East, it is very important that cultural heritage is protected, especially during times of conflict. At present, all of the countries currently at war, in or around the Middle East collectively have 55 heritage sites, and about 20% of those are at high risk. Due to the extreme urgency of this matter, Bangladesh suggests an amendment to the timeline in Resolution II-2 in part 4. a. - Collaborations should start between the Middle Eastern countries currently at war (including Iran, Iraq, Syria, Egypt, Israel, Saudi Arabia, Afghanistan, Yemen, and the United Arab Emirates) and the United States of America to structure a military plan by January first, 2023 and the groups should start to be assembled by March 1st, 2024 which will allow for enough time for a decisive military plan while also acting with a sense of urgency. Given that these amendments are included in the resolution, Bangladesh will happily support resolution II-2. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution II-3

Honorable chairs, even though the People's Republic of Bangladesh strongly supports the protection of cultural heritage, resolution II-3 does not effectively help countries protect against the destruction of cultural heritage. Resolution II-3 does not have a specific timeline or spending amount, along with a specific job description of the guards which therefore makes the resolution incomplete. Also, the resolution would only give the funding for protecting cultural heritage sites to countries who contribute to this initiative, which means that this resolution does not offer a solution for poor countries, which would benefit the most from this resolution as they do not have the resources to protect their cultural heritage. 49 of the 52 at-risk heritage sites that are in danger are in economically unstable countries which shows how crucial it is for the countries to get the funding to protect their cultural heritage sites, even if they can not contribute. All in all, due to the lack of support for poor countries, Bangladesh must regrettably oppose resolution II-3. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution II-4

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh recognizes the pressing issue of at-risk cultural and heritage sites in Ukraine due to the ongoing Russia-Ukraine conflict. Over 127 cultural sites on the UNESCO cultural heritage list have been damaged by the ongoing conflict between Russia and Ukraine. Additionally, both countries have signed the 1954 Hague Convention Act which makes damaging cultural and world heritage sites a war crime. Resolution II-4 offers an effective way of repairing damaged cultural sites and protecting cultural sites from being further damaged. As Bangladesh views this matter as urgent, Bangladesh requests an amendment to be made to the timeline for when the cultural sites shall be repaired - instead of by 2040, all damaged cultural and heritage sites in Ukraine shall be repaired by December 31st, 2035 which will allow for approximately 13 years for the repairs to take place. Having said this, assuming the amendment is made to the timeline, Bangladesh strongly supports resolution II-4. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution II-5

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh acknowledges the pressing issue of persevering at-risk cultural and heritage sites in Lviv, Ukraine during the ongoing conflict between Russia and Ukraine. Resolution II-5 effectively offers a partial solution to protect at-risk cultural artifacts in Ukraine. Bangladesh believes that historical artifacts belong in museums in the country that they belong to, therefore Bangladesh requests an amendment to resolution II-5. Instead of artifacts being permanently relocated to trusted museums in Europe if there is not a stable location for the artifacts in Ukraine after ten years, the artifacts should be temporarily dispersed to museums around Europe after five years but returned to Ukraine when Ukraine is in a stable position to take the artifacts. Additionally, Bangladesh proposes 3 million dollars (IN USD) from the world bank to pay for the moving trucks and ensure the safe transfer of historical artifacts. Assuming these amendments are made, Bangladesh supports resolution II-5. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution III-1

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh realizes the importance of comprehensive sexual education and the problems that are created when a child does not receive comprehensive sexual education. As a study from the University of Albany states "abstinence-only (sex) education programs don't reduce teen pregnancy rates, and in some areas, have the opposite effect." Additionally, countries that teach sexual education have lower teen pregnancy rates than countries that don't. Resolution III-1 offers an effective solution to address the global lack of sexual education as it encourages countries to provide incentives to teach sexual education and the resolution creates a program that will raise awareness about the global lack of sexual education. Bangladesh asks that the initial rollout of the program be completed by January 1st, 2025. Additionally, Bangladesh requests that an additional website be created in partnership with the World Health Organization that includes videos with comprehensive sexual education taught by WHO sexual education specialists. Assuming these two amendments are made, Bangladesh happily supports resolution III-1. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution III-2

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh recognizes that the lack of sexual education in the United States of America is a pressing issue. Bangladesh acknowledges that Norway's teen pregnancy rate is 5 for every 1,000 teens get pregnant (aged 15-19) and Norway teaches comprehensive sexual education whereas the United States teen pregnancy rate is 16 for every 1,000 teens get pregnant (aged 15-19). This proves that teaching comprehensive sexual education leads to lower teen pregnancy rates. Resolution III-2 effectively offers a solution to ensure that sex education is mandated in the United States in grades 6-12. Having said this, Bangladesh strongly supports resolution III-2. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution III-3

Honorable chairs, while the People's Republic of Bangladesh acknowledges the substandard sex education in China, resolution III-3 does not offer an effective solution to ensure that children in Chinese schools are taught sexual education. Resolution III-3 does not include a plan if China decides not to teach more comprehensive sexual education and follow the guidelines outlined in this resolution which therefore relies on China to implement the solutions by themselves without any repercussions from other governments if they don't. Also, resolution III-3 does not include a timeline for the plan to be implemented. Therefore Bangladesh regrettably must oppose resolution III-3. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Resolution III-4

Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh realizes that HIV education, treatment, and prevention is of the utmost importance in Africa. HIV is a sexually transmitted disease that adversely affects one's life forever and in some cases can cause death, and without proper education and testing, another HIV epidemic can occur, especially in some of the developing countries in Africa. Resolution III-4 offers solutions for both HIV testing and education in Africa. Bangladesh requests both 5% of the World Health Organizations' available yearly funds (that are applicable for this cause) of 3.338 billion and 20% of the US's 6.8 billion global HIV available funding to be used for testing and research along with 5% of UNAIDS 242 million dollar budget to be used for HIV education. Assuming that these funding requests are added to the resolution, Bangladesh happily supports resolution III-4. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.

Crisis - Honorable chairs and fellow delegates, the People's Republic of Bangladesh acknowledges the ongoing conflict between North Korea and the United States and is concerned about how there may be increased education censorship or heritage sites at risk during this trying time. Bangladesh is concerned that the United States, Russia, and China are spreading propaganda to mitigate the concerns of their citizens. While Bangladesh believes that trying to comfort a country's citizens in a time of crisis is crucial, Bangladesh is opposed to spreading propaganda and it is prepared to partner with our allies to ensure that no further propaganda is spread. Additionally, Bangladesh is concerned that heritage sites belonging to the Islamic Religion are at risk due to the rising power of the Hezbollah military forces in Middle Eastern countries. Bangladesh asks for other countries' cooperation in making sure no propaganda is spread and heritage sites remain safe. Thank you, and I yield the remainder of my time to the chairs.
